Proceeds to benefit Down Syndrome Research and Treatment Foundation

Down Syndrome Research and Treatment Foundation (“DSRTF”) is a well respected, non-profit charitable organization that supports exciting new scientific research to improve cognition in and enhance the lives of individuals with Down syndrome. Currently, 86 cents of every dollar donated to DSRTF directly supports research programs. DSRTF has concentrated its resources to focus on funding medical research to understand and treat cognitive decline in persons with Down syndrome. It is believed that even a 10-20% improvement in cognitive ability could provide the opportunity for many individuals with Down syndrome to live independently, hold a job and live more integrated lives in their communities. This research may also allow scientists to apply this information to the study of Alzheimer’s disease and other illnesses. For more information, please visit www.dsrtf.org.
