AT NO COST TO PARTICIPANTS

Studies have shown that children with Down syndrome who are introduced to literacy as a language teaching tool in preschool years reach the highest level of achievement (Buckley, 2001). Join us to explore how to use a strengths-based approach to literacy development for early learners with Down syndrome. We will discuss learning routines that are relevant, engaging, and empowering for our youngest kiddos as well as simple ways to track and evaluate progress. Of course, you will leave with additional resources and ideas for school and community inclusion!

Amy Plica, M. Ed.

Amy has over twenty years of experience in education. She has experience as a general educator across elementary grades, a literacy specialist, a family and community engagement specialist, an intervention specialist, a curriculum developer and consultant, a testing coordinator, a school leadership team member and secretary, and more. She also partners with local and national organizations promoting inclusive education. Her current passion lies in collaborating with a variety of stakeholders to engage in sustainable systems change to foster equity, inclusion, and student empowerment.

DSAF workshops are funded through a grant from Office of Persons with Developmental Disabilities (OPWDD). In order for us to maintain this funding, and continue supporting families, we need to clearly show that we are serving families who currently have TABS numbers and have Family Support Services (FSS). Thus, if you applied for and received a TAB number through OPWDD, we will be asking you for that information when you attend our grant sponsored events. Thank you for your support!
